Advanced Driver Assistance Systems (ADAS) are primarily focused on collision avoidance technologies, lane departure warning, blind-spot monitor and driver aids such as night visions, driver alertness and adaptive cruise control.

- From 2020 on, new vehicles have had to incorporate multiple ADAS systems (incl. Autonomous Emergency Braking & Lane Departure Warnings) to achieve a 5 Star NCAP (New Car Assessment Program) rating.

What are the requirements for servicing ADAS in the aftermarket?

- ADAS calibration should taken place
- If faulty, camera/radar/ECU replaced
- After windscreen replacement
- After wheel alignment adjustment
- After mechanical repair affecting geometry
- Following collision / body shop repair

Insurance guidelines state that a repairer shall, in all cases:

- Identify the presence, or not, of adas on the vehicle and ensure this is recorded.
- Where adas are present, ensure repair procedures clearly identify if inspection, realignment and calibration are required and why.
- Complete all relevant inspection, realignment and calibration activities as detailed within the repair procedures.
- Inspection, calibration, realignment and road tests shall be carried out by a currently competent person.
- Ensure the calibration results confirm that the sensors are functioning within the vehicle manufacturer's technical specification.
- Produce fully verifiable and auditable records and provide a copy to the Asset Owner / Work Provider.

- Leading automotive legal advice is that "A workshop is under a general duty to provide its service with reasonable skill and care and delivering a vehicle with incomplete repairs results in a safety issue. As ADAS technology becomes commonplace, workshops are vulnerable to a claim if they either have failed to recalibrate, failed to refer a customer to a specialist for recalibration or failed to notify a customer before commencing a repair that recalibration is required."

Return on Investment

- The average cost of the equipment for a new entrant to ADAS is approx. £24,000.
- A workshop can get a full return on investment within 6 months by only carrying out 2 calibrations per day and charging £150 (average price per calibration for the UK is £200-£300).
- Key opportunities include calibrating whenever wheel alignment carried out and advertising ADAS capability to local garages and body shops.

UNIVERSAL WALNUT BLASTER CARBON REMOVAL TOOL

PART NO: TKR/STA-236

- Used to treat the surface of inlet channels and valves, removing carbonized material without affecting the metal surface by using a pressurised jet of walnut granules.
- Compressed air is used to propel the blast medium – a pressure regulator for adjusting the air pressure with an integrated water separator is included
- Why Walnut Granules?
- Nut shell granules are a natural product made from purified, ground walnut shells which are used as a blast medium for the gentle cleaning of surfaces.
- Due to the low hardness and low specific weight, no material is removed from the workpiece.
- When cleaning internal combustion engines, due to the organic nature of Walnut shell, any residual blast medium simply burns away without residue.

Specialising in Automotive Training for the Automotive Industry they cover a varied range of courses including Level 3 accreditation for those without formal industry qualifications, but with lots of experience; MOT Tester Training Classes 1, 2, 4 & 7; Class 3 and 5 bolt on and The Level 3 Managers qualification.

All our Trainers are qualified MOT Testers, qualified to Master Tech Level, all qualified in teaching training who have worked within the industry & colleges for many years to gain their expert knowledge.

Being one of the very few training providers who deliver the Award in MOT testing Classes 1 & 2 (motorbikes) at both of our in Essex and Derbyshire training centres.

We have a great working relationship with the DVSA and Awarding Bodies.

Donna Chapman, Managing Director, says "we have looked at the sheer numbers of tests being carried out and with over 9,000,000 tests being carried out in the first quarter of 2022, it's no wonder we've been inundated with students wanting training of this type." Readers may be interested to know that there are over 20,000 stations in the UK and almost 60,000 testers, so it's no wonder the market demand is at its highest.

Donna continues "One of the biggest areas we have noticed growth in is on Managers training.

With the recent DVSA changes a senior manager can now become the AEDM but if it isn't one of the Principles (AEP) and AEP must also attend the course.

We have also noticed several existing AEDM's returning for an up skill to help with their stations compliance.

Many stations aren't aware that site managers, even though it is not a requirement, can sit the managers course". Premier MOT have increased their availability of the Level 3 in MOT Centre Management courses to ensure we can meet the demand.
